

Gerry DuBose appeals the district court's¹ dismissal without prejudice of his civil complaint. After careful de novo review, we agree with the district court's conclusion that DuBose's complaint did not state a cause of action actionable in federal court. Further, we find no abuse of discretion in the district court's denial of DuBose's motion for leave to amend his complaint, or in the denial of his postjudgment motion seeking reconsideration of the court's judgment.

Accordingly, we affirm. See 8th Cir. R. 47B.
