PER CURIAM.

Bradford Lazarski appeals the sentence imposed after Lazarski pleaded guilty to being a felon in possession of a firearm. Lazarski argues the district court* erroneously sentenced him as an armed career criminal, because two of the earlier felony convictions upon which his armed-career-criminal classification was based were not violent felonies. Having carefully reviewed the record, we conclude the district court correctly determined the felony convictions in questions were violent felonies within the meaning of the relevant statute. See 18 U.S.C. § 924(e); United
