

United States Court of Appeals
For the Eighth Circuit

No. 23-1623

United States of America

Plaintiff - Appellee

v.

Norris O'Dell Hughes, Jr.

Defendant - Appellant

Appeal from United States District Court for the Northern District of Iowa - Central

Submitted: September 18, 2023

Filed: October 6, 2023

[Unpublished]

Before SHEPHERD, KELLY, and STRAS, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

After violating the conditions of supervised release, Norris Hughes received an eight-month prison sentence. He challenges the decision to revoke rather than order drug treatment.

We conclude that the district court¹ did not abuse its discretion. See United States v. Melton, 666 F.3d 513, 516 (8th Cir. 2012). It carefully considered Hughes’s arguments but ultimately concluded that his criminal history and multiple drug violations made prison time a more appropriate option. See United States v. Miller, 557 F.3d 910, 914 (8th Cir. 2009) (“A district court need only find a single violation to revoke a defendant’s supervised release.”). We accordingly affirm the judgment of the district court.

¹The Honorable Linda R. Reade, United States District Judge for the Northern District of Iowa.
